Horrible Railway Catastrophe.
Wednesday evening on the Wabash railroad near Seneca, Mich., the east-bound limited running 60 miles an hour crashed into a west-bound passenger train also running at full speed, the latter drawn by two engines. The three locomotives were crushed into a shapeless mass, three coaches, two of them crowded with Italian immigrants, were reduced to splinters and burned, and the explosion of one of the boilers added to the horrors of the scene. The full number of dead is not known and perhaps never will be, but it is supposed to exceed 85, mostly Italians who were cremated in the debris. Nearly a hundred were injured, some of them fatally. The collision was due to a misunderstanding of his orders by the engineer of the limited.

DAY OF THANKS

Observance in Plymouth Homes, Churches and Institutions.

Sumptuous feasts were spread in nearly every Plymouth home Thanksgiving day and many joyous family reunions were held, absentees coming from every direction to participate in the bounties of the season. In this city of plenty no home was so poor as to suffer deprivation on this great day of good cheer and charity sought in vain for worthy objects of its benefaction.

At the jail, where Newton May and William Campbell are serving sentences and are the only prisoners, they were allowed to partake of the turkey dinner prepared for the sheriff's family and were made as happy as their enforced confinement would permit.

Mr. and Mrs. Krueyer, of the county infirmary, were guests of Casimire Wickey in town for the day, but the 45 inmates of the infirmary were not left without ample provision for a big dinner. Turkey and cranberries, pies, pickles and jam, with all the usual fixings and dainties, weighted the tables and the public wards enjoyed the generous cheer.

The orphan children at Brightside had long been looking forward to Thanksgiving with joyous anticipation and they were not disappointed. A holiday was given in all departments and after a bountiful feast of chicken and cranberry sauce, vegetables and pumpkin pie the borders of youngsters were turned loose to enjoy the glorious day at games in the open air.

Exercises appropriate to the occasion were held Wednesday afternoon. There are 176 children in Mrs. Work's charge at this time.

The city churches united in a union service at the U. B. church and a large congregation was in attendance. Special music and a suitable program had been prepared. Rev. J. E. Hartman, pastor of the Reformed church, delivered a thoughtful patriotic sermon full of encouraging truth and hopeful Christian sentiment. Father Yenn officiated at St. Michael's church and the children at St. Michael's academy were amply provided for, both in soul and body. At the Reformed church in the evening a union prayer service was held in preparation for the revival work beginning Sunday.

Union Gospel Meetings.

The Union gospel meetings were begun Sunday afternoon, the first of the series being held in the Presbyterian church. After the opening of the services by prayer and singing and a few introductory words, Rev. H. Ostrom delivered the sermon in which he emphasized the following points:

Necessity of revivals.
Revivals in the religious life in harmony with the laws of growth and progress.

Importance of bible study.
Existence of religious enthusiasm.
Essentiality of prayer.

At the close of the sermon a Union People's meeting was held.

In the evening seven hundred people assembled at the Methodist church, where the second of the series of meetings was held. Mr. Ostrom again talked to the people, basing his words upon the first eighteen verses of the first chapter in St. John.

Solos were sung at both services by Mr. Hillis, who is the director of the chorus choir.

Passenger Becomes Insane.

Last Friday evening shortly after the Pennsylvania limited left Chicago one of the passengers, Wm. J. McGuire, a business man of New York, suddenly became violently insane and manifested a disposition to break windows and injure the furniture of the coach. The violent symptoms continuing he was taken from the train on its arrival in Plymouth and was given in charge of the company's surgeon, Dr. Aspinall, who found it necessary to confine the man in jail and to remain with him through the night. The unfortunate patient yielded to quieting treatment and is able to proceed on his journey with his brother, who arrived from New York Monday morning to take him in charge. His temporary mental derangements has disappeared but he is in a weakened physical condition.

Railroad Work Stopped.

The two remaining work trains engaged near Plymouth on the Pennsylvania improvements will be taken off today in order that the engines may be employed in the freight department. The construction work will be indefinitely discontinued and probably will not be resumed until in the spring. The freight blockade has never been equaled and until it can be completely broken neither equipment nor time can be spared for improvements on the railways.

NOVELTY NEWS

Piano Factory Lost But Others Already in Sight.

The Thompson-Eastman piano factory will not come to this city to occupy the old Novelty plant and all negotiations to that end are off. They explain the situation by saying that the people of Plymouth were slow in raising the fund necessary to buy the plant and that other arrangements were made. It seems, however, that the concern dissolved after the proposal to come here was made, some of the members being engaged in other business. Mr. Eastman has located in New Mexico, where he went immediately after the expiration of the time fixed for the agreement to be accepted by our people and when the necessary amount was not yet secured.

The situation remains highly encouraging despite the disappointment in this matter, and it may be confidently stated that within sixty days the vacant factory will be provided with a tenant. The subscribers to the fund for the piano factory are willing, probably without exception, to leave it available in the hands of the Business Men's association to be used at a proper time in their judgment.

A representative of the Estey & Camp piano company has visited this city, inspected the plant and the matter is now under advisement with his company. This institution, which is one of the best known manufacturers of musical instruments in the country, finds it necessary to enlarge its capacity and if it can be secured for this city it will be much better than the one that has been dropped. The agent who was here was delighted with what he saw and said that everything was favorable.

In the meantime a member of the Sandoval manufacturing company, now making agricultural implements at Sandoval, Ill., was here this week and after a thorough investigation of the plant and the advantages of the city he took a short time option on the property and deposited a cash forfeit with the trustee. This option has but a few days to run and if the company does not buy the property the money put up will be forfeited at the end of that time; or they may make an additional deposit and extend the time. This is a well established company and is known to many people here, its product having been long in the market.

Reunion of Stone River Survivors.

DEAR OLD COMRADES:—It is certainly fitting that after thirty nine years have passed, we should meet in reunion. On the 38th anniversary, on short notice, a limited number of us met in reunion for the first time. At this meeting it was unanimously voted to organize permanently with the view of holding annual meetings at such places as might be decided on from time to time. Martinsville was chosen as the place of meeting, December 31, 1901, this date being the 39th anniversary. Firmly believing that the young soldier of 1862 would be glad of the opportunity to clasp hands with the now old ex-soldier, an earnest and cordial invitation is extended to all the survivors of said battle to meet with us at our next reunion, and we hope each one will take a lively interest in our organization. A program will be arranged that will occupy a part of our time, and the balance of our time will be given up to the comrades present for a general good time. We ask each and every survivor to send his name and address to Wm. H. Dryden, Sec'y, Martinsville, Indiana.

General William S. Rosecrans moved from Nashville, December 26th, 1862, with about forty-seven thousand men. He fought the battle of Stone River with an aggregate of forty-three thousand and four hundred—thirty-seven thousand nine hundred and seventeen infantry men, three thousand two hundred cavalry men, and two thousand and twenty-two artillery men. He lost ninety-two officers killed, and three hundred eighty-four wounded; one thousand four hundred and forty-one enlisted men killed, and six thousand eight hundred and sixty wounded, and about two thousand eight hundred missing.

Lieutenant-Colonel Garesche, his chief of staff, was killed by his side, his head being shot off by a shell. In addition to the field officers mentioned as killed, eight colonels and five majors fell in immediate death or died from wounds. General Braxton Bragg reported his strength at less than thirty-five thousand, of whom thirty thousand were infantry men and artillery men. His losses, in the aggregate, including four general officers, two of whom were killed, were nine thousand killed and wounded, and one thousand missing.

The Indiana soldiers in this battle were twenty-four infantry regiments, viz: 22d, 15th, 81st, 39th, 36th, 20th, 30th, 6th, 38th, 42d, 88th, 37th, 82d, 51st, 73d, 31st, 9th, 86th, 79th, 44th, 35th, 40th, and 57th. One battalion of 3d Ind. cavalry and the 4th, 5th, and 10th batteries.

ROMANCES OF AGRICULTURE

Chicago Inter Ocean.

Any one still under the delusion that farming is an occupation giving little opportunity for mental effort should read Secretary Wilson's latest report. There he will find the outlines of scores of real romances of achievement, with the world for their scene and the most patient and acute minds as their actors.

A few years ago a frost, such as living men had not known, swept away the orange groves of Florida. To many this was a calamity without remedy. They could see nothing to do but to replace the blasted trees and hope that such a frost would not soon occur again. But the scientific experts said: "Let us find or make an orange tree that will resist frost." Over in Japan they found the tree, but its fruit was of little value. So they set to work to combine this Japanese tree with the Florida sweet orange. They have produced the hardest orange tree known, and are confident that in a few years they will have a fruit both resistant to frost and of good quality.

Rice has been grown in Louisiana for a hundred years, but the yield seemed to be diminishing and the industry was dwindling. About three years ago the Agricultural Department suggested the substitution of the Japanese rice plant for that formerly grown. The experiment was so successful that the production this year exceeded that of 1899 by 75,000,000 pounds, and imports of rice have fallen from 154,000,000 to 73,000,000 pounds. About $20,000,000 new capital has been invested in the gulf coast rice industry.

Coffee has long been the small Porto Rican farmer's chief money crop. Though little known in this country, Porto Rican coffee is in steady demand at high prices in Europe. Soon after Porto Rico became American our experts began studying coffee culture. They speedily found that the Porto Ricans were shading their coffee plants too much—that the shade was not necessary in itself and that its chief value was in the effect on the soil of the roots of the leguminous trees which supplied it. Better methods have been suggested which are expected to double or treble Porto Rico's coffee crop.

The cold and dry winters of the Northern great plains states have frequently killed the grass and so curtailed pasture that heavy loss of live stock resulted. In Russia the Agricultural Department has found a grass and in Turkestan an alfalfa which stand cold and drought better than any previously known here. The former has proved perfectly hardy clear up in North Dakota and assures the farmers there both pasture and hay.

Not long ago an insect known as the "San Jose scale" was found to be numerous and destructive in the California orchards. Several European countries took alarm and adopted measures which threatened greatly to curtail our foreign fruit trade. Reasoning from such past experience as that of the rabbit and the thistle in Australia, it was seen that the reason this scale was so destructive was that it had reached a country where its natural enemies did not exist to keep it in check.

Then a world-wide search for this insect's home and natural enemy began. Both were found in North China. There the scale infested all sorts of fruit trees, but did no extensive damage because a beetle kept its numbers within bounds. So this beetle has been brought across the Pacific and set to work upon its natural prey, and California fruit growers are feeling much more cheerful than they felt a few years ago.

Such are a few of the achievements of scientific intelligence applied to the farming industry. They justify, although on other grounds than his, Cato's saying that agriculture was the purport most worthy of the good citizen. For they prove that in farming operations there is scope for the most painstaking research and the most acute thought of which the human mind is capable. They show that those who talk of farming as a dull and unintellectual occupation are simply ignorant of what modern agriculture means and is.

TO THE MAN WHO THINKS.

LOOK yourself squarely in the face and see if you are not half ashamed to be without Ivory Soap in your house. Worse than this, your wife is without it. It is bad enough for a man, though a man often doesn't care how his comfort is mis-spelled. But a woman misses all these little helps to housekeeping. And Ivory Soap is one; its great potency makes it actually cheaper than yellow soap for general work. It floats.

The real cause is not exactly known, but the theory is that the rural mail routes which are being operated generally all over the farming sections, is one of the causes. This keeps the farmers at home six days out of a week, when before the rural mail went into effect they came to town every day "after the mail." As a general thing they do not come to town now unless they have to, as the carrier does a great deal of purchasing for them.

Business of Saloons.

CROWNPOINT, Ind., Dec. 2.—There seems to be a great temperance wave passing over the northern section of Indiana, as the saloon men from all sections are complaining of their slack business, saying that their trade is from 50 to 75 per cent. less than it was last year, and with every day dropping off. Their poor business in this county, which has more saloons than any other county in the state—269 in all—according to population, is very noticeable, as a great majority are adding short-order restaurants, bowling alleys, etc., to draw trade.
